FRIDAY 28 FEBRUARY: NEWS, NOTICES AND FORTHCOMING EVENTS

Dear parents and guardians,

In Headmaster's assembly this morning I offered a few reflections on the coronavirus which has been dominating headlines.

In times like this, we need to put ourselves in the hands of the experts. It is difficult to assess these sorts of risks and so we look to the people who really know what they are talking about; Public Health England (PHE), the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the World Health Organisation (WHO). As a school we are following the guidelines from PHE. As you will have noticed, this situation can change fast in our global village, where international travel is so easy. Only this morning the first cases were reported in New Zealand and Nigeria.

According to news agency Reuters, as of yesterday afternoon more than 80,000 people in over 40 countries have been infected with Covid 19, the coronavirus. The UK is one of these countries where, out of nearly 8000 people tested, 16 have been diagnosed as having the virus. All of them contracted the virus while abroad. For the vast majority of people who have contracted the virus they appear to experience a fairly mild illness, in fact some may even be unaware they have it. It is elderly people and those with other pre-existing health conditions who appear to be most at risk.

Minimising risk

The situation is more severe in other countries. In Japan, for example, in a move which has left health officials scratching their heads, the government are advising the closure of all schools from 2 March. They have the added pressure as hosts of the Summer Olympics in Tokyo. In Saudi Arabia they have banned religious pilgrims from visiting Mecca or Medina in order to prevent the spread of the virus. At school, we are certainly planning for a range of eventualities to minimise disruption to education.

Hygiene matters

Yesterday in tutor groups, our students discussed the importance of taking steps to stop germs spreading using PHE information. This is important generally, but particularly now where the WHO are monitoring the global situation and have spoken about the risk of a global pandemic (a disease spreading quickly in different places). I reminded students to wash their hands regularly with soap and water and suggested that they should have tissues and hand sanitiser with them at school.

Fake news

Unfortunately, but perhaps predictably, the unpleasantness of the situation is being amplified by the spreading of fake news. Indeed, only yesterday our school reception received an anonymous hoax call on the topic which turned out to be totally false.

More than ever the Truro School community needs to be true to our motto, to be rather than seem to be. I was clear with the school that careless talk about who might have travelled from where is not helpful, and that banter and coronavirus are two issues that are best kept apart. It is very easy in situations such as this for people to scaremonger, to overstate risk and to panic.

The prospect of a global pandemic is a frightening thought but the statistics in the UK are that the risk is low. The director of the WHO said yesterday "This virus has pandemic potential. This is not a time for fear. This is a time for taking action to prevent infection and save lives now."

Be kind

As a caring community we are putting ourselves in the shoes of others. This virus is affecting all of us at Truro School, directly or indirectly.

On a lighter note, enjoy this weekly bulletin which paints a lovely picture of a purposeful, happy school on a mission!

Mr Gordon-Brown

Headmaster

Top marks in UK for budding geologist

Congratulations to Molly on achieving the highest Geology GCSE mark in the country.

Miss Hope, Head of Geology, presented Lower Sixth student Molly with an engraved Geological hammer in celebration of her hard work and success in achieving, what we believe to be, the top mark in the country for GCSE Geology. Miss Hope commented, "Molly is an outstanding Geologist with a natural talent for the subject."

Furthermore, we understand that 5 of the top 10 GCSE results in the country this year were achieved by Truro School pupils.

Molly is currently studying A-Level Geology and plans to follow in the footsteps of many Old Truronians who have gone on to study Geology at University.

A superb achievement – well done Molly!

The show-stopping sights of London

Drama students embarked on a theatrical trip to London before the half term.

On the itinerary was the Royal Opera House where the group had a look around inside one of the large rehearsal rooms, saw the set of La Traviata, all courtesy of the friendly fight director, Simon Johns who guided their tour.

En route, they did some quick sightseeing of Trafalgar Square, before an evening performance of Touching the Void.

Additionally there was a visit to the street used as Diagon Alley, a picture opportunity outside the Duke of York's Theatre for an evening performance, and a visit to the world famous Pineapple Dance Studios before our dance workshop with a member of the Matilda cast, with a grand finale of watching Matilda.

Alumni opens local deli

Former Masterchef contestant and alumni Kate Atlee loves to cook up a curry for friends and family, and has freelanced around for many years, but now the expert foodie has begun a new venture, opening her own middle eastern inspired deli in the centre of Truro, 'Sabzi', a Persian word for 'green herbs'.

The former student visited the school at the opening of the Cookery School in 2018. Now she has given some passionate advice to those on the Leith's Introductory Certificate of Food and Wine: 'Don't be afraid to know how you want to work in the industry, don't be swayed by what everyone tells you, don't be pushed into one thing or another. Have the confidence to say 'I can', if you desire to work in a specific cuisine for example, don't be afraid to have something you want to do, and go for that route. For me I wanted to build a career in food that didn't involve loads of evenings'.

But rewind and cooking wasn't always on the table for Kate (CO06) and became a career she fell in to.

Kate took us through her journey at Truro School where it began in the Sixth Form, and joked that her favourite 'really academic' memory was the social side and loved all the balls that the school put on.

She reminisced: 'I remember it being a really friendly school when I was there and

'Don't be afraid to have something you want to do, and go for that route'.

I felt really welcome and it just felt like a real community, so that is my overriding memory. I've got a few proper solid friends who I'll know I'll be friends with forever, one of them, her dad was our head of year'.

Straight from a scene of a childhood sweetheart story, Kate met her husband at Truro School almost immediately on the induction day.

'There's an embarrassing photo of us in those team building activities, we had to make a human pyramid, and I was kneeling on my now husband's back. Because it was in the school newsletter, my mum got a copy and loves to pull it out. We met and that was that'.

In the Upper Sixth, unbeknownst to her at the time, Kate had glandular fever which was only picked up later in her life in blood tests.

'I was really poorly but I worked like an absolute dog to get the results I got, so the lesson is if you want something you've got to work really hard for it. I just had to dig in and work hard because everyone thought I'd become lazy'.

During university she continued feeling very poorly which resulted in a year off. She went back but didn't finish the course because she decided that studying wasn't what she wanted to do. It was during that period of time and having her children that she really fell in love with food. It was not something Kate had planned on doing, but having always worked part time in the food industry, and becoming highly trained in service at the River Café in London, everything came together.

Squash team through to national finals

Key Stage 4 and 5 squash players have reached the National Schools Finals after defeating Epsom College 4-1, Lancing College 4-1, Reigate Grammar 5-0, and Kings College Taunton 5-0. The finals will take place in Nottingham from 19-20 March.

Congratulations to all the players on their hard earned victories.

U12 girls' success at hockey festival

The Under 12 Girls' Hockey Festival was an extremely wet day with an afternoon of hockey ahead. A total of 10 teams entered, with what is a warm up festival before the County Tournament.

One Truro team got to the final against Falmouth School while the other team supported in the most awful weather. After a goalless draw at full time the game was decided on flicks. It's always a very hard and not very nice way to get the result but we did come out on top and that was the right result, after we had all the possession in the game.

England Squad Selection for Eddie

Sixth Former Eddie received the fantastic news that he has been selected for the England Counties U18 squad.

Eddie was picked as part of the squad of 23 following two divisional development weekends in February. Only one of two players from the South West to have made the national squad, Eddie has done extremely well.

Eddie will join the squad for a two-match series against Ireland Clubs & Schools in April at Goldington Road, home of Championship side Bedford Blues.

England Counties U18, led this year by John Mackenzie, will convene next weekend at the home of Worcester Warriors for team building exercises, field sessions and to develop playing strategies. They will also play against Worcester Warriors Academy for game practice. They will then reunite in the second week of April where final preparations will be made for their first game.

We look forward to following his progress – well done Eddie!
