Connecting.
Supporting.
Promoting.

“Are charities part of the economy?”

*“I want a job that makes a difference
in the world”*

What is the Third Sector - what is its role in politics and economics and could it shape your future career?

The Third Sector employs over 1 million people in the UK and exists to create social impact rather than profit.

We often talk about:

- The Public Sector (eg NHS, state schools, police)
- The Private Sector (eg businesses like Tesco, Boots)

...but what about the Third Sector - also known as Civil Society or Charitable Sector?

Come and find out more:

Thursday 14th May | 4.15–5.00pm | The Chapel

 Donuts, discussion, and real-world insights with:

- Sir Stephen Bubb, The Gradel Institute of Charity, New College Oxford
- Matthew Kenworthy-Gomes, Cornwall Voluntary Sector Forum

This session will explore:

- What the Third Sector actually is
- Why it plays a major role in economics and politics
- What career paths in this sector look like

Who should come?

- Students who want a career that makes a difference
- Aspiring economists curious about the structure of the UK economy
- Students interested in politics and economics

Please send your questions in advance to Mr Whatley to help shape the discussion.
